General Camp Information.

Room Configuration:

- Amanzi Camp has 4 guest suites and 1 pilot | guide room in total.
- There are 2 stand-alone tented suites and 1 two-bedroom family suite. The 2 suites making up the two-bedroom family suite are identical to the stand-alone tented suites regarding interior layout.

Activities include:

Game drives, walking safaris, boat trips, fishing, and birding.

Seasonality:

December, January, February, & March:

- During rainy season Amanzi Camp is closed.

April, May:

• Most of the rain fades away, leaving a landscape that is green and lush, with clear skies and pleasantly mild temperatures.

June, July and August:

• The nights are generally much cooler, but the days are clear and warm. Make sure you bring warm clothes to wrap up in the early mornings and evenings, as some nights get very cold.

September, October and November

• These days are clear and warm to very hot. Every now and then a cooler day can be experienced, so make sure you bring warm clothes to wrap up in the early mornings and evenings, just as a precaution.

In camp payments:

• In camp payments for anything excluded from the general rates can be settled in cash (USD) or by credit card. Credit card payments attract an additional 5% of the total in camp bill to be settled.

Tipping:

This is at your own discretion and is not expected, but a rough guide is $10 per person per night for the general camp staff, and a further $10 per person per night for your safari or fishing guide if you are happy with the effort and service provided.

Medical:

Malaria does exist in Zambia; therefore, it is recommended that you take malaria prophylaxis. There are many different types of preventatives, so it is important to seek advice from your physician on the best anti-malarial pills to take.

It is also a good idea to take your own personal medical kit, although Amanzi Camp has a comprehensive emergency medical kit and most medicines.
